

Websites on Banned Books and Censorship

www.forbiddenlibrary.com

The Forbidden Library. Contains lists of banned and challenged authors and books, as well as great quotes on censorship.

www.unesco.org/webworld/mdm/administ/en/detroit.html

Lost Memory. Documents libraries and archives lost in the 20th century through major disasters.

www.digital.library.upenn.edu/books/banned-books.html

Banned Books Online. A listing of books that have been targets of censorship or attempted censorship.

www.booksatoz.com/censorship/banned.htm

Banned Books and Censorship. Contains links to various sites dealing with censorship and book banning.

<http://libraries.luc.edu/about/exhibits/banned/index.shtml>

Banned Books and Censorship: Information and Resources. Sponsored by Loyola University Chicago Libraries.

www.humanities-interactive.org/literature/bonfire/

Bonfire of the Liberties. Focuses on book burning as a form of censorship.

www.amnestyusa.org/bannedbooks/

Amnesty International. Features writers who suffer persecution because of their writing or their reading.

www.villagevoice.com/news/0246,davis,39832,1.html

Village Voice Newspaper. An interview with Taslima Nasrin, a writer from Bangladesh whose work has been banned in her own and many other Muslim countries.

www.beaconforfreedom.org/

Beacon for Freedom of Expression. An international database on censorship and freedom of expression.

<http://news.google.com/nwshp?hl=en&ned=us>

Google News. Type in “Banned Books,” “Censorship,” “Banning Books,” or “Challenged Books” for current news stories on banned and challenged books.

Banned Books
Week 2005
September 24-
October 1